RBC Due Diligence intensive seminar

The Centre for Human Rights at the University of Zurich has successfully launched their CAS programme in Responsible Business Conduct. The CAS in RBC is a programme aimed at professionals to gain the knowledge necessary to adequately navigate the intricate web of emerging regulatory requirements at the national, regional, and international level.

At the heart of RBC lies the concept of risk-based due diligence, which is also at the centre of one of the modules of the CAS programme. Doing business responsibly means conducting risk-based due diligence. For this purpose, the Centre for Human Rights provides a unique opportunity to corporate practitioners to join the module on RBC due diligence together with the participants of the CAS programme. Participants will, together with experts in the field, analyse in detail how to conduct risk-based due diligence and learn about the most recent developments in the EU.
